Dear Mentor Teacher,

Thank you for welcoming a teacher candidate from the University of Central Oklahoma (UCO) into your classroom and for helping in the preparation of a future educator.

During student teaching, we hope the teacher candidate has opportunities to:

- Interact with students
- Assist with instructional tasks as needed via the co-teaching strategies
- Become involved in the use of instructional media and materials
- Become familiar with reports, lesson plans and other responsibilities of a teacher
- Gain effective instructional and classroom management tools and strategies
- Teach solo for two weeks
- Ask questions and discuss professional issues
- Know their content and be continuous learners
- Accept feedback and put suggestions for improvement into practice
- Demonstrate professional and respectful behaviors
- Learn all they can through co-planning, co-teaching, observations and solo teaching.

The OPTE has been the certification assessment administered through Pearson in the past, however, the state of Oklahoma will no longer be using this assessment for certification. For certification, all educators wanting to be Oklahoma certified, must pass the Praxis Performance Assessment for Teachers. (PPAT) The passing score over three tasks must be a 40 or higher. The candidate has already begun working on Task One which will only be assessed by the supervisor and is due for submission to ETS no later than September 22 by 1:00. Tasks 2-4 will be completed during the student teaching semester and will be assessed by national raters; much like National Board. The candidate will have access to many resources both from UCO and ETS-the PPAT website. <https://www.ets.org/ppa/test-takers/teachers/prepare/>

There are two days scheduled as PPAT “Working Sessions” back at UCO on October 1 and October 22 to assist the candidates further. This will be a lot of work for the candidate on top of their scheduled student teaching, but we have many people in place such as professors, TES, and student teaching supervisors to support them. We have stressed to the candidates that they must manage their time well so that they are not paying late charges to ETS for late submissions. (See due dates on the student teaching schedule on page 2 & 3.)

The university supervisor will work with you to collaborate on a mid-term and final assessment. This will be highly collaborative and represent an accurate picture from all perspectives regarding the teacher candidate’s teaching progress.

Thank you so much for your support of this UCO teacher candidate. Please know that you may contact the university supervisor and/or the TES office if you have any questions or concerns.

EARLY RELEASE-- Mentors: Please know we appreciate your willingness to mentor a student teacher, and we value your expertise. It is possible that even though your candidate was confirmed for placement in your classroom for either six, ten or sixteen weeks, that the opportunity might arise for your teacher candidate to begin as an early release candidate in another classroom that is in need of a teacher. In this case, his or her weeks will be reduced if approval is given by the supervisor, and if all requirements are met. With the teacher shortage in Oklahoma we are finding many schools are requesting to hire our student teachers for long-term sub positions and/or full time faculty positions. In an effort to assist the student teacher and our partner schools, the University of Central Oklahoma is willing to release soon-to-be graduates after their twelfth week of student teaching as long as the following protocol is followed:

The hiring school must hire the teacher candidate for a long - term substitute position and/or full - time faculty position in their field of certification.

1. The school must provide a supportive mentor teacher and administrator to our candidate.
2. Our University supervisor will still complete any remaining student teacher visits.
3. The school where the candidate teacher was teaching must be informed by UCO of the early release.
4. The candidate teacher must be “graduation ready” regarding coursework, D2L artifacts, dispositions and the state exams—PPAT and OSAT. (Modern Languages- OPI and SPED—ORT)
5. The University must receive a recommendation from the candidate teacher’s supervisor for early release.
6. The candidate teacher will not officially be released until the University gives him/her final permission. (This process can take a couple of weeks.)
7. The candidate teacher must continue to adhere to the UCO absence policy.
8. The candidate teacher must attend required days here at UCO.
9. Split block teacher candidates must complete at least six weeks in each block.
(Secondary and Elementary)

A teacher candidate hired through this protocol is paid by the hiring district as a substitute until after graduation and certification is received. At that time, the candidate is officially hired as a full-time faculty member. However, the teacher candidate is placed in his/her full-time teaching role and assumes all responsibilities immediately upon employment. The early release allows the hiring school to provide a trained teacher in the classroom in hopes of providing stability and a strong learning environment for P12 learners sooner rather than later.

Co-Teaching Strategies & Examples

Strategy	Definition/Example
One Teach, One Observe	One teacher has primary responsibility while the other gathers specific observational information on students or the (instructing) teacher. The key to this strategy is to focus the observation - where the teacher doing the observation is observing specific behaviors. Examples: One teacher can observe for: specific types of questions asked by instructing teacher; teacher movement; charting student participation; specific on-task behaviors; specific group interactions. Tip: When observing collect data/evidence. Observation is not intended to make judgments, but to provide data on what is happening in the classroom and allow that information to impact future lessons.
One Teach, One Assist	An extension of One Teach, One Observe - one teacher has primary instructional responsibility while the other assists students with their work, monitors behaviors, or corrects assignments. Examples: While one teacher has the instructional lead, the teacher assisting may ask clarifying questions, provide additional examples or be the "voice" for the students who don't understand or are hesitant to share. As teacher candidates lead their first whole group lesson, the CT can be responsible for overseeing classroom management - allowing the TC to focus on pacing, questioning strategies, assessment, movement, etc. Tip: This strategy supports classroom management as students get their questions answered faster and behavior problems are addressed without stopping instruction. Pairs often identify a signal (standing under the clock) that allows for a quick conversation or opportunity to discuss something without the CT interrupting the lesson.
Station Teaching	The co-teaching pair divides the instructional content into parts - each teacher instructs one of the groups, groups then rotate or spend a designated amount of time at each station - often an independent station will be used along with the teacher led stations. Examples: If co-teaching pairs were doing a literacy lesson they could divide into 3 stations: one working on fluency, one on reading comprehension and one on vocabulary. A science lesson may have students at one station viewing a specimen/sample under the microscope (magnifying glass), another station has students diagramming the specimen/sample, and a third station has students watching a short video of the specimen/sample moving in its natural setting. Tips: Stations cannot be hierarchical students must be able to start at any station. This is an excellent way to have student working in smaller groups; allow the TC the opportunity to build their confidence while teaching a mini-lesson multiple times; and keep the cooperating teacher actively engaged with students. Other adults (Paraprofessionals, Special Educators, Title I teachers) can also lead stations. Pacing, voice and noise levels must all be discussed prior to the lesson.
Parallel Teaching	Each teacher instructs half the students. The two teachers are addressing the same instructional material and presenting the material using the same teaching strategy. The greatest benefit to this approach is the reduction of student to teacher ratio. Examples: After reading a selection from their text, the class is divided into two heterogeneous groups where they discuss a list of questions from the reading. For an elementary math lesson students are divided into two smaller groups where each teacher is able to support the use of manipulatives for solving problems. Tips: Place students facing their teacher with backs to the other teacher/group to reduce distractions. When teacher candidates view the CT timing and pacing can be supported as they learn. Pacing, voice and noise levels must all be discussed prior to the lesson.

Supplemental Teaching	This strategy allows one teacher to work with students at their expected grade level, while the other teacher works with those students who need the information and/or materials retaught, extended or remediated. Examples: Using the results from an math exam students are divided into two groups, one smaller group that didn't meet the expected score/requirement will work with one teacher who will reteach the concept(s) and provide support materials to help students understand and successfully complete the math problems. The other teacher will work with those students who successfully completed the exam; however these students will build on the same concepts and complete additional math problems. Tips: Groupings are based on need identified from a specific exam or assessment. Both teachers should work with all students throughout the experience, making sure that one teacher (TC or CT) doesn't always work with the students who are struggling and/or need extensions. Group make-up is always changing.
Alternative or Differentiated	Alternative teaching strategies provide two different approaches to teaching the same information. The learning outcome is the same for all students however the avenue for getting there is different. Examples: When doing a lesson on predicting students will take clues from what they have read so far to predict what will happen next. One teacher may lead a group of students through a brainstorming activity where they identify the significant events that have occurred so far in the story - putting each event on a white board. Based on those significant events the group together brainstorms what will happen next in the story. The other teacher accomplishes the same outcome but with his/her group, the students predict by connecting the specific items pulled out of the bag with the story (Shiloh - dirty dog collar, $20 bill, moldy cheese, etc.). Tips: A great way to incorporate learning styles into lessons; both instructors need to be clear on the outcome(s) of the lesson, as student should achieve the same objective but arriving there using different methods.
Team Teaching	Well planned, team taught lessons, exhibit an invisible flow of instruction with no prescribed division of authority. Using a team teaching strategy, both teachers are actively involved in the lesson. From a students' perspective, there is no clearly defined leader - as both teachers share the instruction, are free to interject information, and available to assist students and answer questions. Examples: Both instructors can share the reading of a story or text so that the students are hearing two voices. The cooperating teacher may begin a lesson discussing specific events; the TC may then share a map or picture showing specifics of the event. Tips: Often pairs will begin the experience by team teaching a lesson, providing "fact time" in front of the classroom for the teacher candidate - this is much more scripted and staged, but does provide an opportunity for the students to view the teacher candidate as a "real" teacher. Team teaching takes intense planning, but the longer pairs work together the less time it takes as they know what each other is going to contribute.
