Residency Status: In addition to specific courses, GPA, and GRE scores, a factor considered in the selection of students is their residency status. Because the College is state-supported, applicants must recognize that priority will be given to Oklahoma residents.

Selection of Major: It should be emphasized that “pre-veterinary” is not a major. It simply means that the student is meeting requirements for admission to veterinary school. This, in addition to satisfying these requirements, the student should be working toward a baccalaureate degree in some area. There is no recommended major for pre-veterinary students. The College of Veterinary Medicine encourages a broad general curriculum in the social sciences and humanities in addition to a high level of competence in the physical and biological sciences. Good communication skills are also important. Beyond this, the best advice for students is to select a major in an area that will offer stimulating challenges and provide a viable alternative to veterinary medicine if they are not admitted to the college.

Quality of Curriculum: Pre-veterinary students should choose a curriculum that demonstrates a capacity to handle the rigors of veterinary school. If they choose the easiest curriculum they can manage, it will be obvious to the Admissions Committee that they have been protecting their GPA. It will certainly deprive them of the level of preparation they need for professional school.

Veterinary Experience: In order to test the depth of their commitment, Pre-veterinary students are advised to get direct exposure to the world of veterinary medicine. Many veterinarians will allow students to shadow in their clinics, and talk with them about career choices. Three letters of recommendation will be required in the application process, and one of them must be from a veterinarian.
